Frequently Asked Questions for Parents & Guardians

What is the Circulator?

The East Side Circulator is designed to safely and effectively transport youth in Dayton's Bluff and Payne Phalen to and from youth programming. It is one important piece in creating a neighborhood infrastructure that supports youth learning.

The East Side Circulator is actually two bus routes; one in Dayton's Bluff and one in Payne-Phalen. They connect at the YMCA for an easy transfer. The Circulator encourages young people to learn in many different locations throughout their neighborhood. It helps youth expand their number of positive relationships, and gives them a sense that their community is a place where they have many opportunities to learn and grow.

When does the Circulator run during the summer?

Weekdays 10:00am-6:00pm, from June 22 until August 28 (no service July 3rd).

What about school-off days or days without school?

The Circulator does not currently run when school is not in session for scheduled holidays or cancellations due to weather.

Is there a cost?

No. The Circulator is free to young people.

Who can ride?

Any registered youth between the ages of 7 and 18 can ride. Children requiring a car seat may not ride. Those under 7 years of age can ride if accompanied by a family member age 13 years or older. Parents are welcome to accompany their child.

How do young people register?

Before being allowed to ride the Circulator, a parent or guardian must complete and sign a registration form for each young person wishing to ride the Circulator. This form ensures that parents or guardians consent to their children's use of the Circulator, clearly lays out the community's expectations for Circulator riders, and provides us with important contact information in the case of an emergency.

Is the Circulator safe?

YES! The Circulator is a well marked school bus. In addition to an experienced bus driver, there is an 18-21 year old Youth Job Corps worker on each bus to ensure children's safety on the bus and help them find the correct stops.
